Conversation with Jim Gordon - March 14, 1984

K: You identified the colors and the chakras - red for the root chakra.

JG: Yes, red is the lowest of the chakras - the root chakra. And the second one is the cocyx, solar plexus.

K: O.K., so we have red, orange, yellow green, blue, purple and gold. And you said the days of the week had colors too. Would that be like Monday would be red?

JG: It really varies a great deal. It follows something of a pattern like that, yes. But, it varies according to the lunar cycle. A lot of the energy of the Earth is based on the lunar cycle because man is an emotional person - of an emotional nature. And the moon tends to be a controlling factor of that. The days of the week are also affected by the lunar cycle a great deal.

K: So would the day of the new moon have a special color?

JG: My mind isn't really on this - I don't know. I've got so many things going on in my mind so it's real hard to get specific. I'm going to have to sit down and really work that out because I never paid that much attention to where I could just say this is this and that is that.

K: For instance, you say that you're crazy today. What's your color today.

JG: It's green and then there's a lot of purple. I guess today would

K: O.K., so what are you wearing today?

JG: I'm wearing a shirt that has a kind of grey and lavender and some red in it. It's a stripe. If you can coordinate your colors with the day it just helps you to harmonize with the energy of the day better.

K: What would be the color of the day for me?

JG: That would be the color of the day for everybody as far as the colors coming into the world - into the Earth plane that day - it's more of a lavender. There's a lot of spiritual energy coming in.

K: Do you remember what yesterday was?

JG: No, right off hand I don't.

K: Can you tell about what tomorrow would be?

JG: Tomorrow is gold.

K: And you know that already. How come?

JG: I can kind of project and see what colors are coming through for tomorrow. You have to get up early in the morning and look into the sunrise or look at the sky early in the morning. And if you are clairvoyant enough you can see the colors for the day and there will be enough color for tomorrow coming through so that you can see that as well usually.

K: That's neat, so then tomorrow what would you wear?

JG: I have a yellow shirt that I'll wear.

K: You were talking about the holistic healing rooms in Houston that are different colors.

JG: Those pyramid things, yeah. They are rooms but they have a pyramid cap on top of each one and each room is a different color so people can go in and kind of meditate and kind of collect the energy for whatever they need - for healing or whatever they feel they need to gravitate to for that day.

K: Would something like that be a part of the new Foundation?

JG: That's very elementary and I think it's almost too elementary for what they are trying to work with. They may, but they would really have to incorporate it into other things because it has a healing effect but it would have to be incorporated along with diet and the whole thing. Color itself doesn't change - you have to change the whole environment of the body and color will change a little bit but it won't change a lot just by itself. Because it is inconsistent - it doesn't remain that way - it's only a momentary change.

K: So, for instance, today you are going to drink purple water?

JG: I have some water sitting in the windowsill in a purple glass and I will drink that tonight. ?

K: Have we had any red or pink days lately?

JG: Yesterday was a pink day.

K: I knew it. (laughter) I knew it. Isn't that interesting. That's the reason I asked the question because I felt that. Yesterday I got up and I put on pink and came to work and listened to your thing on color and healing - I tried to get you yesterday as a matter of fact to check it out.

JG: Yesterday was a pink day.

Can you call me back tomorrow.

K: I only have a couple of little questions. Did you get the thing I sent you on Louis XIV - the finance minister?

JG: Yeah, that's correct.

K: It is? Oh neat. I never had had that confirmed.
